Empowering Lives Through
Work and Community

2025 Community Impact

Every life restored begins with someone who believes change is possible.

At Exodus Homes, we witness transformation every day. Because of the generosity of our supporters, partners, and volunteers, men and women who once faced addiction, incarceration, and homelessness are rebuilding their lives with dignity, purpose, and hope.

In 2025, Exodus Homes served 127 individuals through our supportive housing and recovery programs. Each person who enters our program receives far more than a place to stay. They receive structure, accountability, vocational training, spiritual support, and a community that believes in their future.

Lives Changed. Hope Restored.

Through the support of our community, Exodus Homes was able to:

- Provide safe, supportive housing for men and women rebuilding their lives after addiction, incarceration, and homelessness.
- Offer vocational training and employment opportunities through our Exodus Works program, helping residents gain real job experience and skills for long-term stability.
- Connect residents to employment, transportation, recovery support, and life skills training, creating a clear path toward independence.
- Serve families in need through community outreach, providing clothing, furniture, hygiene items, and essential resources to individuals facing crisis.
- Support long-term recovery and accountability, helping individuals break cycles of addiction and incarceration.

Real Change in Our Community

Transformation is not just something we hope for. It is something we measure.

A recent study of our program found that 90% of Exodus residents avoid re-incarceration within two years, compared to a statewide recidivism rate of approximately 60%. Every person who succeeds represents a stronger family, a safer community, and a life restored.

Looking Ahead

The need for supportive housing and re-entry support continues to grow. Yet every day we see what is possible when a community comes together to offer opportunity instead of judgment.

Because of partners like you, Exodus Homes will continue providing safe housing, meaningful work opportunities, and a path forward for individuals determined to rebuild their lives.

Hope lives here.
